

Northeastern University

NULab for Texts, Maps, and Networks

What's the Story? A Panel on Digital Storytelling

Thursday, October 11, 2:00–4:00 pm
333 Curry Student Center

Join us for an interdisciplinary panel on digital storytelling! Panelists include:

Michelle Borkin, Computer Science, “Visual data-driven storytelling”

Pedro Cruz, Information Visualization, “Data driven generative storytelling”

Elizabeth Maddock Dillon, English, “Narrative theory”

Élika Ortega, Cultures, Societies and Global Studies, “Digital literature and media shifts”

John Wihbey, Journalism, “Data storytelling for impact”

This panel will launch the NULab’s 2018-2019 theme on digital storytelling.

For more information on this year’s programming, please see:

<https://web.northeastern.edu/nulab/events-fall18/>

This event is free and open to the public but if you are not a member of the Northeastern community, please email Sarah Connell (sa.connell@northeastern.edu) to RSVP.

Co-Sponsored with the Northeastern University Visualization Consortium (NUVIS)

<https://web.northeastern.edu/nulab/event/kickoff-panel-digital-storytelling/>